

Community Insect Collection

Butterfly Biosphere Trading Post

Join Thanksgiving Point's Community Insect Collection!!! Learn more about the bugs that live around you by making and sharing your observations. Let's get curious and make connections with our local bug friends together.

How can I contribute to the Community Insect Collection?

1. Make an observation by taking a picture

- Make sure the picture of the bug is clear enough to tell what it is
- When you come to the Butterfly Biosphere, you can either bring us a printed copy OR send the picture to TradingPost@ThanksgivingPoint.org
 - ◆ Make sure you include your name in the email subject line so we can match your picture to your observations
- If you find a dead bug, you can bring that in too

2. Record Information

- Date and time of observation
- Location found - be as specific as you can
- Other observations - descriptions, drawings, behaviors, environment, etc.
- Wonders and questions

This collection is an extension of the *Trading Post. If you bring in a picture or a specimen, you can contribute points to your Trading Post account. It is linked to your Museum of Natural Curiosity account so you can grow your points for both locations.

Butterfly Biosphere Trading Post Rules:

- Only 2 pictures/specimens can be traded in per individual per day.
- ONLY bug observations are accepted here in specimen or picture form.
- Pictures of Arthropods (bugs) must be taken by you.
 - ◆ Specimen rules:
 - We strongly discourage killing bugs for this collection
 - All specimens must be in a container or bag that seals

You can find out more about the Trading Post at the Museum of Natural Curiosity on our website.*

Trading begins on Monday, April 18!
